

- I should have better prepared myself on the content of RatNum and RatPoly as I had to go back and forth from both Classes to understand how they related. It took some time to learn how RatNum and RatPoly related, which I took a lot of time I should have been using to actually write code. I could have avoided using a late day if I familiarized myself first.
- I think the only improvement to this homework is maybe if the RatPoly tester was more specific on what was failing. There were certain times where I would be getting an error and I was unsure of what it even correlated to. In the end though, I did eventually understand but they could be misleading.
- I understand Object oriented programming more now and definitely feel more honed in terms of my java writing ability.